What can FARMIT do for your business?

FARMIT is a software that is specially designed for market growers, available online and on your mobile phone. This integrated management software allows you to save time and money. The software includes features for overseeing inputs, employees/workers, tasks, equipment and harvests.

FARMIT's accessible and flexible service makes it essential for all market growers concerned with maximizing profitability for their business, for every crop and every field.

All your production management can be done in real time, including:

Pesticide application • Commercial fertilizer application
Agronomic recommendations • Testing • Seeding and planting
Harvesting and lifting • Preparation and packaging • Irrigation

Automate your processes!

FARMIT was developed by market growers, for market growers. Industry traceability issues are therefore at the heart of the software's design.

Today, most market growers are accountable to governments and consumers, for all aspects around contamination. The issues of traceability are real, both for health and for yields. FARMIT meets this need by compiling all the necessary data into an integrated solution.
